

The media has already become enough of a lapdog to corporate interests. We need the media to stay independent and outside the realm of corporate interests as much as possible. Media must be diverse and strong, not a single collective voice speaking from a single company.